

Climate Damage Claims

Damages caused by climate change are going unclaimed and therefore industries have no incentive to reduce emissions that contribute to climate change.

As a society, we need a way to speed up the process of translating climate damage costs into costs for companies so that these damages are accounted for by the companies that produce them. We also need a way to compensate people and other companies that are damaged.

Claimer.org has developed a system to facilitate both these goals.

Our software package and workflow system facilitates the compilation of such climate damage claims so that those who deserve compensation will receive it.

We, at Claimer.org, believe that anyone affected by environmental damages, especially climate change, should have an equal right to be compensated.

These damage claims, when collected and litigated, will not only benefit the victims of climate change damages but also provide companies an economic incentive not to create emissions that created climate change.

We are looking for organizations that are interested in collecting these damage claims with the help of our software package.